

JENNIFER SCHLIEPER

BIOGRAPHY

Director, Creative Director & Co-Owner of Flying Scooter Productions

Jennifer Schlieper is an Emmy Award-winning filmmaker, director, producer and writer whose work lifts the veil on stories often shrouded in silence, from grief, homelessness and addiction to the diverse experiences and challenges of women.

Her path to filmmaking began in the world of creative and brand strategy at Ketchum, one of world's largest PR firms, launching and rebranding products and services for Fortune 100 and Fortune 500 power brands. She later made the leap to the corporate side, leading GNC's global marketing efforts as one of the youngest female senior executives. In 2017, she launched Flying Scooter Productions with producing partner Courtney Gumpf out of a need to do something that mattered for those who matter.

Over the past nine years, Schlieper has written, scored, directed and produced hundreds of stories. Redwood is Flying Scooter Productions' latest feature documentary project. It follows their festival debut, The Ocean-Five Years (2025), an intimate look at a musically gifted family moving through grief after losing their son and brother. The film earned significant acclaim including Best Documentary at VIFF, the Audience Award for Best Documentary Short at Pittsburgh Shorts & Script Competition, and Official Selection at the Oscar-Qualifying Cleveland International Film Festival. It is currently streaming on Apple TV, Prime Video, and PBS Passport.

Another award-winning project, Eye of the Needle (2017), is a short documentary offering a raw yet compassionate look at homelessness and addiction, and the individuals working tirelessly to provide hope and healing.

Beyond filmmaking, Schlieper continues to lead strategic initiatives for global clients in heavy manufacturing, built construction, health and beauty and law. She has also helped raise millions through stories and brand activations for some of Pittsburgh's largest nonprofits in the homeless and underserved space.

She is a Recording Academy Member and serves on the boards of The Amelia Project, The Beauty Restores Foundation, Seachange Foundation and The Pennsylvania Film Industry Association (PAFIA).
